Welcome

The Hon Steven Marshall MP
Premier of South Australia

The South Australian Government is a great supporter of the arts – an industry that showcases our culture, creativity, innovation and bold ideas.

Since 1996, local, interstate and international audiences have delighted in the visionary work presented by talented artists at the South Australian Living Artists (SALA) Festival.

This winter, we get to enjoy nearly 700 exhibitions, tours, workshops and displays showing at over 500 venues across the state, including regional South Australia. I’m proud of the festival’s inclusivity. There are now even more bilingual tours on offer and more schools are participating in varying ways. It is still the biggest open access visual arts festival in the world.

As you peruse this program, I encourage you to immerse yourself in multiple experiences and try something new. I have every confidence that you will find something to learn or marvel at. Congratulations to all participating artists and the organisations for what will be another successful year.

Melvin Mansell
Newscorp Editorial Director
SA, WA, NT & TAS

Like the news industry, the SALA Festival is all about seeing the bigger picture: viewing an ever-changing landscape through an innovative mix of media. This takes both traditional forms – such as paint, sculpture, photography and print – and exciting new formats including digitally generated imagery, video and even virtual reality.

Just as the news industry is undertaking massive change to reach its audiences through different platforms, so artists are utilising the latest materials and emerging technologies to produce works that speak to a 21st century community.

The Advertiser is proud to have been associated with SALA as the event’s major sponsor for more than a decade and support the state’s artists in its various publications.

Through the pages of The Advertiser, SA Weekend magazine, the Sunday Mail, The Messenger and their online counterparts, we take artists’ images and their stories from the walls of galleries and into the homes and hands of our readers.

In judging and awarding The Advertiser Contemporary Art Prize, I also gain an insight to how South Australia’s most imaginative and creative forces view the society we live in, and the issues which confront it.

Make the most of the month of August to immerse yourself in the kaleidoscope of experiences that is SALA, discover new venues and meet the local artists behind the images.

Kate Moskwa
CEO, SALA Festival

Art connects people with ideas, emotions and stories and has a unique capacity to communicate the human experience. The exhibitions and events in the South Australian Living Artists Festival are a reflection of our State’s culture and communities.

SALA is celebrated in galleries, restaurants and bars, along main streets, and in studios across the State. The program invites you to discover venues and artists in your neighbourhood and beyond, to seek out something different and make new connections.

There are numerous ways you can search the program – including finding exhibitions near you if you’re using a mobile device. If you’re looking for guidance we have walking, scooter, and bus tours, bilingual tours in Mandarin, Hindi, Gujarati and Punjabi as well as participatory tours so you can have a go at making art.

South Australians can be proud that we host the world’s largest open access visual arts festival, truly a reflection of the State’s engagement with culture and an openness to see the world from another’s point of view. There are over 8,000 artists participating in this year’s Festival, each with their own distinct perspective; experience the world through the work of South Australia’s living artists.

SALA Festival respectfully acknowledges the First Nations of South Australia and all Traditional Owners of country throughout Australia. We pay respect to Elders past and present and emerging and recognise their cultural heritage, beliefs and continuing connection to land, place, waters and community. We acknowledge that they are of continuing importance to all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples living today.

SALA is an open access Festival. Details for exhibitions and events are published according to the information provided at the time of registration. Every effort is made to ensure that all details are correct at time of publication. Program details may be subject to change. Please check details of any events via the contact information provided for each listing. Otherwise check salafestival.com for up-to-date information provided to the Festival.
PechaKucha 20x20 is a simple presentation format where you show 20 images, each for 20 seconds. PechaKucha Nights are informal gatherings where creative people get together and share their ideas, works, thoughts - just about anything, really. We’ve invited a range of South Australian artists to present in the PechaKucha 20x20 format for a night of art-inspired frivolity. The bar will be open.

Where Art Meets Life: Assessing the Impact of Dark Mofo, a New Midwinter Festival in Australia
5:30pm – 6:30pm
In the context of the South Australian Living Artists Festival, Adrian Franklin considers the success of another midwinter festival, its social, cultural and economic impact, and how well it integrates its local community into its programming. In order to understand activation in contemporary cities you need to understand why and how they were de-activated in the first place.

Louise Haselton is an outstanding South Australian artist of international repute. Her alluring artworks offer glimpses of the curious inner lives of everyday and overlooked things.

With a witty reverence for the objects and materials she engages, Haselton explores the communicative possibilities of weight, balance and form within her predominantly sculptural works. Her practice is unexpected, unconventional, and exemplary of an artist especially attuned to the matters which surround us. Louise Haselton: Act natural is a compendium of Haselton’s works to date including illustrated essays chronicling the inspirations, influences and ideas behind her extraordinary practice of the last twenty-five years.

The SALA series of books showcasing the works of South Australian living artists was initiated by the SALA Inc. Board and is published by Wakefield Press with the assistance of the Government of South Australia. This is the twenty-first book in the series, following Annette Bezor: A Passionate Gaze, Richard Grayson; Kathleen Petyarre: Genius of Place, Christine Nicholls and Ian North; James Darling: Instinct, Imagination, Physical Work, Daniel Thomas; Nick Mount: Incandescence, Margot Osborne; Ian W. Lee Walter Guided by her conversations and cherished interaction with patients and families living with dementia during her residency, Lee Walter has created a body of work representing the essence of the time she has spent with each individual. Poignant and emotionally charged, the work reflects the beautiful and confronting nature of the moments in time that she was privileged to share.

Christopher Williams & Therese Williams
This work uses the piano as a metaphor for the fragility, beauty and dignity of the human body. The artists have attempted to rehabilitate a rather neglected piano. In its former state the piano presented as uncared for and unloved. The artist intent is to rehabilitate the piano physically and metaphorically, to restore its dignity as an instrument capable of affording aesthetic pleasure both as a visual object, and as a sounding object.

Placebo
John Blines
The efficacy of medical treatment is primarily attributed to surgical and/or pharmaceutical interventions. It is, however, widely accepted that positive patient outcomes can also be attributed to inactive treatments, such as inert drugs and the psychological support afforded to the patient via ‘the placebo effect’. Placebo explores the potential that knowing a treatment has an organic, plant-based origin makes it more acceptable, tolerable and, possibly, more efficacious.

Our brains are an amazing piece of human ‘hardware’. It’s when the brain no longer functions as it once did that its complexity becomes even more apparent. During this residency Naomi focused on understanding the brain and the research into Parkinson’s and Alzheimer’s Disease. The glass sculptures and accompanying video explore the interplay between scientific or medicalised knowledge and the role of the lived experience of being a body.

Bushworks

My latest body of work demonstrates a deep fascination with the Australian bush and desert landscape. The complexity and variety of plant life intertwined with the vibrancy of colours is an ideal opportunity for me to observe the beauty of colours in nature. Despite overwhelming desolation in some rural areas, the landscape evokes a deep feeling of energy, life and beauty.

Ghost objects in this collaboration between Guildhouse and AGSA, Honor Freeman ‘ghosts’ the collection. Working primarily in porcelain, Freeman harnesses the mimetic qualities of clay through the magic of slip casting whereby porcelain casts echo original objects. Liquid slip becomes solid, thereby becoming a memory of a past form – a ghost object. Freeman explores the residual stories (real and imagined) that orbit around the AGSA collection in objects of ritual, mourning and loss.

Kaldowinyeri – Creation Time
Cedric Varcoe believes that art is a pathway to connect people to their origins and to share the message of how his ancestors created this land and everything that lives in it in which needs to be respectfully taken care of. He gets inspiration through observation of country and the stories told by his family elders about the creation of areas such as the Lower River Murray, Coorong over to Encounter Bay and other regions in SA.

ART Action solidarity
An exhibition where art lovers make the price? Is art still a worthy activity in today’s cultural recession? In the 70s Felber read the statement by Fritz Billeter, 'To complete the process of art appreciation there are three equally important elements – the artist, the gallery and the collector.' Felber attempts to show why art is still a worthy activity in today’s cultural recession.

Bijou: an installation by Stephen Bowers
To distribute works within The David Roche Foundation’s collection at Ferry House is an opportunity for both revelation and concealment. Like Ferry house itself, discernment and association, as well as surprise, suggestion and curiosity are at play. Disguise and detection are also afoot, for distributed amongst Ferry’s treasures my eclectic contributions might appear in open view or reside quietly in odd corners. Some works speak to objects in the collection, others unravelled with such dialogue.

Steve SHEARER

A Portuguese-Italian Love Affair
Steve’s atmospheric watercolour street scenes and landscapes of Lisbon, Porto, Venice, Tuscany and Rome, capture the richness of the colour and charm of the buildings, laneways and countryside seen on his recent trip to Portugal and Italy. Steve spent hours wandering around in the early morning and evening light of Portugal’s Lisbon and Porto and the wonderful cities of Venice, Siena and Rome in Italy, sketching and soaking in the scenery and the atmosphere.

His fine glass vessels compliment each other in careful compositions that harmoniously juxtapose form and colour. Other Homes and Gardens
In this hugely ambitious new exhibition, South Australian artist Nicholas Folland imagines a world in which cozy notions of domestic security are thrillingly destabilized. Combining installation with kinetic sculpture, ‘Other Homes and Gardens’ inverts the idea of the Anthropocene, depicting humankind at the mercy of dangerous and implausible natural forces. Simultaneously uncanny and darkly humorous, this never before seen exhibition is not to be missed.

Funny Bones
CBS Art Program is delighted to invite you to Funny Bones, a celebration of whimsical, colourful, personal and playful paintings and drawings. Ranging widely between individual approaches and styles, our eleventh SALA exhibition will feature the engaging creative energies of 22 aspiring adult artists with disability. Facilitated/curated by Adelaide artist Hans Kreiner, assisted by Cheryl Feeney and presented by Community Bridging Services (CBS) Inc. – supporting people with disability in employment, education, recreation and art.

Tandem

On Statenburgh Art Exhibition
This exhibition features a moving image artwork about the global state of refugees. It comments on the journey people take to get to a safe place. I have sourced images in stories about refugees from newspapers, and then edited with collage, drawings and animation to comment on the plight of stateless, homeless and usually detained people who are in a state of limbo.

The Art of Texture
The theme is texture in its many and varied forms, with each artist reflecting it in their own unique style and medium. A smorgasbord of functional and expressive artworks reveals how texture feels to use, and then edited with collage, drawings and animation to comment on the plight of stateless, homeless and usually detained people who are in a state of limbo.

The Scene is the Seen
This exhibition, performance and critical writing event of emerging and mid-career practitioners explores the potential relationship between text and art. Responding to a series of works from notable artists and theorists, each exhibitor will conceive a work that transforms meaning and translation whilst echoing the principles of the original text. Each piece of writing touches on themes of ongoing critical and artistic concern – melancholia, displacement, identity, culture.

Softly the Body
This work uses the piano as a metaphor for the fragility, beauty and dignity of the human body. The artist have attempted to rehabilitate a rather neglected piano. In its former state, the piano presented an uncared for and unloved. The artist intent is to rehabilitate the piano physically, and metaphorically, to restore its dignity as an instrument capable of expressing both as a visual object, and as a sounding object.

Placebo

The efficacy of medical treatment is primarily attributed to surgical and/or pharmaceutical interventions. It is, however, widely accepted that positive patient outcomes can also be attributed to inactive treatments, such as inert drugs and the psychological support afforded to patients via the ‘treatment’: the placebo effect. Placebo explores the potential that knowing a treatment has an organic, plant-based origin makes it more acceptable, tolerable and, possibly, more efficacious.

The Collections Project

Schwertsik works in visual art and contemporary performance with participatory inclusion. She navigates the everyday by engaging with objects and public spaces and subverts their functionality with humorous interventions. For The Collections Project Schwertsik explores the Post-object and Museum to present new video and performance work that comments on Australia’s ecological footprint. The Collections Project is a collaboration between Guildhouse and Flinders University Art Museum.

Telescop and Decapod
Inspired by the decorative patterns, colours and bizarre shapes of marine animals, Alice Kay explores abstraction and design in a collection of vivid graphic paintings of fish, crabs, lobsters and crayfish. In her icon like compositions form and pattern are stylised and simplified while colour harmonies and contrasts are elaborated. Although the monochromatic features of each species are retained the aesthetic potential and novelty of the subject are enhanced.

1/64 Landscape Photography in the Digital Age
Group f/64 were landscape photographers formed by Ansel Adams in the thirties. The term f/64 carried some meaning; it meant large format cameras and implied disciplined photography on a tripod. Photographs taken by the f/64 group reflected outcomes of exhaustive location research and disciplined technique. The extreme contrast of light in the landscape required careful control of tonal range and darkroom technique. Ran Langman pays homage to this group in an exhibition of monochrome landscapes.

Colours of MINDFULNESS

My exhibition consists of the many types of artwork I have created by painting with coloured bees wax using an iron to glide over glossy card, perspex, tile and timber to create different effects. I use encaustic wax as a healing and meditating tool, enabling me to drift into an unknown world of multiple bright colours to create unique abstracts, land and seascapes. Emerging
